

Please reject the plan to provide broadband services via power lines. I strongly believe that although consumers stand to benefit from the service, the spectrum implications are too great. The affected services are long time users of the proposed spectrum and no other spectrum offers desired characteristics.

If power companies wish to enter this business they can implement other delivery mechanisms which will contain the radio emissions and not interfere with other services.

Rich Inman